

Interpreting Your Feedback

1. From all the data available to you, indicate the clear areas of strength you bring to the table. This is not a time to be bashful. Take this opportunity to own your real strengths.
2. What did you learn about who you want to be? How wide is the gap between your aspiration and your daily self? Are you surprised at the difference (either smaller or larger than you thought?)
3. How has visualizing your best self impacted your career aspirations?
4. Are you on the path to your ideal job? What can you adapt in your existing job to move towards the ideal? Is this in your control?
5. How much has your career deviated from your original goals? What could this tell you about goal setting for the future?